

Abstract

Cāṇakya nītiśāstra, i.e., Cāṇakya Sūtrāni and Cāṇakya nīti Darpan, contains golden maxims that can remain used in modern-day to because of its relevance and how such policies and tactics applied by organisations or individuals, which was given by Cāṇakya in his work nītiśāstra as well as by Kautilya, in his Arthashastra. Cāṇakya nītiśāstra mainly focuses on examining the credibility and practicality of the tactics and policies in the administration, ethics, and supervision, which may apply to contemporary India as well as the world. However, the Cāṇakya sūtrani remains a compilation of guidelines governing a vast empire covering an aspect of internal administration (Good Governance), ethics, a strategy of socio-economy in a nutshell. It also advises the ruler to promote the welfare of his people as they were the source of strength of the nation. It also showcases how the Administrator/Ruler should utilise every resource or element of national power for a state's general welfare.

Key Words: Nītiśāstra, Nīti Darpan, Good Governance, Welfare